

GENERAL INDEX.

VOL. II. NEW SERIES.

"A Brand plucked out of the fire," or a brief account of Robert Kendall. By W. P. Davies, 213, 219
Alps, defiles of, near Reichenshall, 470
 Amour, its strong current, 156
Antwerp, Buonaparte's commission to the Commandant of, 945 Appel aux Souverains réunis à Paris, pour en obtenir l'abolition de la traite des Negres, 103, et seq.
 Approbation of the conduct of young persons, great caution requisite in administering it, 19
 Archbishop Sancroft's Fur predestinatus, see Predestin'd Thief.
 Arithmetical Preceptor. By Joseph Youle, 496, et seq.
 Arius, his opinions, 489; modifications of Arianism traced, 490
 Armstrong's facts and observations relative to the fever called puerperal, 400, et seq.; its two stages, ib.; symptoms in its first stage, 401; Dr. A.'s treatment, 402; its success near Sunderland, and extract, ib. et seq.; farther remarks on its symptoms and treatment, ib. seq.

Banian, a description of a most beautiful specimen on the banks of the Nerbudda, 410

Banian hospital (for brutes) at Surat, 442

Barrett's life of Cardinal Ximenes, 325, et seq.; sketch of his early life and studies, 326; enters the convent of Observantines, ib.; author's comment on religious seclusion, ib.; Ximenes' austerity of life, 327; chosen confessor to the queen, and Provincial of his convent, ib.; visits the convents, and reforms their abuses, 328; appointed Archbishop of Toledo, ib.; continues his austere mode of life, 329; forms a university at Alcala, 330; compiles the Complutensian polyglott Bible, ib.; sails to Barbary and reduces Oran, 331; appointed regent of Spain, ib.; supposed to have been poisoned, 332; ingratitude of Charles V. 333; his death, ib.; estimate of his character, ib.

Belsham's memoirs of the late Rev. Theophilus Lindsey, 117, et seq.; Mr. Lindsey's reputation accidental, 113; complementary style of his biographer, 114; sketch of Mr. L.'s life, ib. et seq.; entertains scruples concerning the lawfulness of Trinitarian worship, 115; renews his subscription, 116; his unjustifiable prevarication, ib.; his exemplary conduct as rector of Catterick, 117; renounces his living, 118; founds the chapel in Essex-street, 118; Socinianism in England on the decline, 119, et seq.; extravagance of the boast of its pretended increase, 122; conduct of the Puritans and Socinians contrasted, 123; Mr. L.'s qualifications as a writer, 124; his mal-treatment of Mr. Robinson, ib.; character of Mr. Belsham as a writer, 125; he asserts that God is the Author of natural and moral evil, 126; denies the external authority of Jesus Christ, 128; Mr. Lindsey not entitled to rank among the ejected ministers, 130

Bhauts, their peculiar character and manners, 633; Tarak-wo, a mode of murderous revenge inflicted on themselves when oppressed by tribute, &c. 634; dreadful instance of it, ib.

Bible Society, real cause of the opposition to it, 584; alleged cause of the clergy for withholding their co-operation, 585

Bible Societies, on the influence of, on the temporal necessities of the poor, 168, et seq.; effects of the objections against the Bible Society, 169; funds for its support do not encroach on those for the relief of the poor, 170; its moral effects on the poor, ib. et seq.; its principle of combination, 170; its tendency to meliorate the temporal

INDEX.

- state of the poor, 174; reflections on the present state of society, and anticipations of an improved state, 176-7
- Bioscope, or Dial of life explained, 373, et seq.; print of the dial described, 373-4; disadvantages attending emblematical representations of moral truths, 374; sanguine views of the Author in regard to its effects, 375; design of the work, 376; different views arising from the consideration of our age in early and in later life, 376; author's opinion of the cause of the defection of our nature, 377; tendency of the Bioscope to excite reflections on the value of time, 377-8; expedients to impress on the mind the transitoriness of time, 379; remarks on the glory acquired by a military life, 379-80; happy combination of religion with the feelings of childhood, 380, 1; delusive error arising from improper views of old age, 381; Gibbon and Addison's views at the close of life contrasted, 382; Epistle of Paulinus to Celantia, ib.
- Bishop of St. David's brief memorial, 160, et seq.; substance of the statute repealed, ib.; his Lordship's opinion of it, 161; and false deductions, ib.; repeal of the Test laws would not endanger the church, 162; would merely render Dissenters admissible to offices, but would give no right or claim to admission, 162; ambiguous use of the term Church by certain writers, 163; the real evil of the Test laws, 164-5; his Lordship's 'Three Truths,' 165; his remarks on some of Mr. Belsham's propositions, 166, et seq.
- Bloomfield, his poetic claims considered, 461-2
- Bologna, with some account of its institutions, 480, et seq.
- Bowden's Remains, 628, et seq.; contents, ib.; limits to students for the Christian ministry, 629
- Boydell's illustrations of Holy Writ, 191; means of the old masters inadequate to the production of correct pieces of scripture history, 192; absurdities of the moderns, ib.
- Brande's chemical researches on the blood, and some other animal fluids, 247-8
- Brief Memorial by the Bishop of St. David's, 160, et seq.
- Brodie's further experiments and observations on the action of poisons on the animal system, 253
- Brody on the influence of the brain on the generation of animal heat, 603
- Buchanan's, Dr. address to the missionaries of the Church missionary society, extracts from it, 529, et seq.
- Cabanel's poems and imitations, 615; extract, 616
- Calicut, large city found there by Vasco de Gama, now lost to the world, 452; tops of minarets and temples sometimes seen at low water, ib.
- Calvinistic principles, their tendency examined and defended against Archbishop Sancroft's virulent aspersions in his 'Fur predestinatus,' 216, et seq.
- Cambridge, Dyer's history of the university and colleges of, 518, et seq.; founder and era of the foundation of its university, 524
- Campagna di Roma, description of its appearance, 487
- Carey, Eustace, Mr. Hall's address to him, 85, et seq.
- Carnot's defence of fortified places, translated by the Baron de Montalembert, 92, et seq.; subjects of the treatise, 93; Buonaparte's commission to the Commandant of Antwerp, 94-5; translation unsatisfactory, 96, et seq.
- Caste of the Brahmins, 450; the Pooleahs, ib.; the Pariars, 451
- Cavern temples of Salsette and Elephanta, 452
- Chalmers on the influence of Bible societies, 169
- Chamelion, description of, 413
- Chances, Rouse's doctrine of, 562, et seq.
- Chandler's history of persecution, 237, et seq.; contents, 238; author's misapplication of the term persecution, 239; work defective in not developing the occasions and consequences of the persecutions, 240; extract from Evagrius, on the violent deaths of some of the heathen emperors, ib.; disingenuous allusion to the conduct of St. John, 242; to the Arian controversy, ib.; to Calvin and Francis Davides, 243; letter of John Wesley to a bishop, on account of the persecution of some of his preachers, 244
- Channing's discourse at Boston, North America, on the deliverance of Europe from military despotism, 625, et seq.; reasons for its reprint in this country, ib.; extract illustrative of the preacher's philanthropic feelings, 625; moral influence of Napoleon's despotism, 626-7; its fall a cause for gratitude, ib.
- Charge to the clergy of the diocese of Chester, by Dr. Law, Bishop of Chester, 578, et seq.
- Charles I. apology for his conduct by the

INDEX.

- author of the Velvet Cushion, 342 ;
 Bishop Burnet's character of Charles, ib. ; on the application of the terms martyr and saint to Charles, 343 ;
 death of the King not compassed by the Puritans, 346
 Charles II. his life preserved, when prince of Wales, by Algernon Sydney, 259
Charles the second's waggish test of the qualifications of the members of the Royal Society, on the day of its institution, 292
Cheeta, or hunting leopard, described, 443
 Childe Alarique, a poet's reverie, 617, et seq. ; feebleness the prevailing character of these poems, 618 ; extracts, 619 ; on the vicissitudes of elevation and despondency of poetic minds, 620 ; remarks on the author's classing together of minds of opposite texture and character, 620 ; extract, 623
 Children frequently sold on the Malabar coast by their mothers for a small sum, 448-9
 Christian world, Evans's sketch of the denominations of, 486, et seq.
Christ's death, its cause and end examined, 167
 Church, unwarrantable use of the term by certain writers, 163
Cimbri and Teutones, colony of, still found in Italy, 473 Classical English letter writer, 525-6 ; contents, ib.
 Claudian's Rape of Proserpine, translated by J. G. Strutt, 363, et seq.
 Clayton's Prayer for the multiplication of evangelical labourers, a sermon, preached before the patrons of the Newport Faguel institution, 413 ; origin of the institution, ib. ; necessity of elevating the intellectual and literary character of religious seminaries, 414 ; causes of the decline of literary attainments among the dissenters, 415 ; reasons tending to excite a spirit of prayer, for the increase of evangelical teachers, 418
 Clergy of Russia unanimous in their endeavours to circulate the scriptures, 439
Complutensian Polyglott Bible, compiled under the patronage of Cardinal Ximenes, 330
 Congratulatory odes, by Robert Southey, Esq. Poet Laureate, 179
 Condemned criminals, great judgement and discretion requisite in ministers who visit them, 221, 226
 Controversialists, hints to them, 363
 Converted Malefactors, objectionable nature of the accounts sometimes published respecting them, 222, et seq.
 Corn Laws, observations on them, 1, et seq. ; comforts of the community in proportion to the labour requisite for the supply of necessary food, 2 ; contradictory nature of the pleas in favour of the corn laws, 4 ; pretence of their affording a provision against uncertainty of supply examined, 5, et seq. ; and that the land-owners should be protected like certain manufacturers, 10, et seq. ; corn subject to a small tax only in the production, and none in the consumption, 14 ; glaring rapacity and injustice of the land-owners, ib. et seq. ; their disinterestedness delusive, 15
Cubbee, or sacred verses of the Hindoos, inquiry into their nature, 529
 Davies's ' Brand plucked out of the fire', or brief account of Robert Kendal, 213, 219
 Davy on a gaseous compound of carbonic oxide and chlorine, 249
 — on some experiments on the combinations of different metals and chlorine, 251
 — — — — — and of fluoric acid, 601-2
 — on some combinations of phosphorus and sulphur, &c. 604
 Dawson's Inquiry into the causes of the general poverty and dependence of mankind, 1, et seq. ; favourable character of the piece, 16
 Dean of Wells's sermon before the Church missionary society, 526, et seq. ; extract illustrative of the spirit and style of the discourse, 527 ; the Dean's remarks on the conduct of the India Directors, 528 ; Dr. Buchanan's caution to beware of men, 529 ; Cubbee, or sacred verses of Hindoos, inquiry into their nature, ib. et seq. ; Mr. Wilberforce's remarks on the seizure of the idol and ear of Juggernaut for arrears of tribute, 520 ; car of Juggernaut broken and sold by order of a collector under the Madras Presidency, 530-1 ; extracts from Dr. Buchanan's address, on denying Christ, ib. ; on the harvest being great, &c. ib. ; Dean Ryder on the union of spirit among Christians of different Communions, 533-4 Deity of Jesus, and doctrine of the Trinity, Simpson's plea for, 606, et seq.
 Dial of life. See Bioscope Discourse delivered at Boston, N. America, on the deliverance of Europe, 625, et seq.

INDEX.

- Discourses for domestic use, by Henry Lacey, 498, et seq.
- D'Israeli's quarrels of authors, 288, et seq.
- Dissecting room, unfavourable to the faith as well as health of pupils, 78; its cause, ib.
- Dissenters, remarks on the indefinite sense lately attached to the term, 338
- Drama, its original purpose, as exhibited in the ancient theatres, 70, (note)
- Dramatic poetry, not necessarily connected with the histrionic art, 69, (note)
- Drayton's poems, 181
- Dushehene's reflections of a French constitutional royalist, 624: right of the Senate to propose terms to the King questioned, ib.
- Dyer's history of the university and colleges of Cambridge, 518, et seq.; reverential partiality formerly felt by scholars for the university where their minds were trained, 518; origin of that feeling, ib.; its present decline, and cause of it, 519; no popular history of Cambridge before written, 520; qualifications of the present writer, ib. et seq.; subjects of each volume, 521, et seq.; era of the foundation of the university, and its founder, 524; its advancement under Edward III. ib.
- Edible birds-nests, 446
- Edinburgh Review, Art. Essai philosophique sur les probabilités par Laplace, 562, 570, et seq.; Reviewer's dangerous perversion of the principles of Laplace's work, 570, et seq.; delusive nature of his remarks, 571; his dangerous and false conclusions, 574; Dr. Waring on the demonstration of probabilities, ib. et seq.; Reviewer's argumentation examined and refuted, in regard to Scripture miracles, 575
- Education of the Russian population, plan to render it universal, 439; beneficial effects likely to result from it in regard to the Greek church, ib.
- , what might be expected from it, if conducted by Christian philosophers, 17; not omnipotent, ib.; the mind and heart its primary objects, 13; whose business education is, or rather is not, ib.
- Eighteen Hundred and Thirteen: a poem, by Mrs. Grant, 101; extracts and remarks, 102
- Errors of thought, their danger, 77
- Essex-street chapel fitted up by Mr. Lindsey, 118; reformed liturgy introduced, ib. et seq.
- Eustace's tour through Italy, 465, et seq.; qualifications necessary to the Italian traveller, 466, et seq.; the party quit Vienna, 470; defile of the Alps near Reichenhall, ib.; pleasing character of the modern Rhetians, 471; Verona, ib.; account of two modern exhibitions in its amphitheatre, 472; colony of the Cimbri and Teutones still existing in Italy, 473; declining state of the schools at Padua, 474; the Brenta, ib.; Venice, 475; the Rialto, ib.; cause of the decline of Venice, ib.; villa of Petrarcha, 476; instance of Italian industry, 477; on the supposed scenery of Virgil's Eclogues and Georgics, 488; Bologna and its institutions, 480, et seq.; the Rubicon, 482; Santissima casa at Loretto, 483, et seq.; description of Campagna di Roma, 485; on the emotions occasioned by classical and devotional recollections connected with the cities of Rome and Jerusalem, 541, et seq.; the spirit of the ancient idolatry, recognised in modern forms and institutions, 543; Rome most interesting as the subject of prophecy, 545; view of ancient and modern Rome from the capitol, 546; materials of ancient Rome probably buried under the modern city, 548; remarks on some of the paintings in the Vatican, 550; Raffaello's celebrated painting of the ETERNAL FATHER, 551; St. Peter's, 552; compared with St. Paul's, 553; exhibition in St. Peter's on Good Friday evening, 555; palace of Trajan on the Lake of Nemi, 556; tomb of Virgil, 557; Solfatara, 558; infalibility of the pope not a doctrine of the Catholic creed, 560; indulgences, 561
- Evangelical Labourers, Clayton's prayer for the multiplication of, 413, et seq.
- Evangelical pastor, Flavel's character of, 300
- Evans's sermons for domestic reading, 495, et seq.; difficulty in selecting sermons adapted for family reading, ib. et seq.; requisites in such discourses, 296; short sketch of the author's life, 296; character of the discourses, ib. et seq.; extracts illustrative of their spirit and manner, 298, et seq.
- sketch of the denominations of the Christian world, 486, et seq.; preliminaries, 487-8; arrangement of the denominations, 491; injudicious treatment of some of the subjects, ib.

INDEX.

opinions of Arius, 489; modification of Arian opinions traced, 490; Moravian tenets ill-defined, 491; crude notions of the author on the right of private judgement, 491-2; instances of uncandid statements, 493; character of the work inferior, 494

Expeditious arithmetician, by Messrs. Denby and Leng, 496-7

Faber's treatise on the ordinary operations of the Holy Spirit, 50, et seq.; radical difference in the religious character of those who admit, and those who deny the doctrines of the Holy Spirit, ib.; change induced on the mind of one who rejects the doctrine, ib. et seq.; importance of the doctrine, 51; difficulties attending it, 53; necessity of a holy influence, on the mind, 54; some inaccuracies in the author's statement examined, ib.; Mr. F.'s remarks on a resistance of the Holy Spirit's operations, 56; objections, 57, et seq.; description of persons whose understandings are enlightened while their hearts remain unaffected, 60; effects of Christianity and results of infidelity contrasted, 62-3

Familiar scenes, histories, and reflections, 514, et seq.; extracts and remarks, ib.

Feathers Tavern, association of a part of the Clergy held there to procure relief in the matter of subscription, 119

Flavel's character of an evangelical pastor, 300

Flowers of wit, by the Rev. H. Kett, 184

Forbes's oriental memoirs, 405, et seq.; immense mass of composition prepared by the author, 406; his qualifications at the commencement of his travels, 406, et seq.; scene of his observations, 409; qualities of the cocoa-nut tree, ib.; Banian, 416; distress of some monkeys at the death of a companion, ib.; author's danger from a cobra di capello, 411; account of the whip-snake, ib.; nocturnal visit from a tiger, 412; description of a Chameleon, 413; swingers, 441-2; teak tree, its durability, ib.; hospital for brutes, pride of the rich Hindoos, 443; its good effects, ib.; cheeta, or hunting leopard, ib.; edible birds-nests, 445; termites, ib. et seq.; parrots, their numbers, and depredations in the rice-fields, 447; salt-boilers, their wretched situation, 448; sale of children by their mothers not unfrequent at Angengo, ib.; character of the

Malabar people, 450; caste of the Brahmins of Malabar, 450; degraded state of the Pooleahs, ib. et seq.; desperate wretchedness of the Pariahs, 451; Syrian Christians, 452; caverns of Salsette and Elephanta, 452-3; superstition of a Mahratta chief, 455; administration of justice, 456; Mahratta army described, 457, et seq.; desolation attendant on its progress, 631; dreadful nature of a field of battle in the East, 632; peculiar character and manners of the Bhauts, 633; the Turakaw, a mode of murder, by way of revenge against oppression, practised by the Bhauts, 634; horrid instance of it, as practised by a tribe of Brahmins, ib.; singular account of the death of a Raj-poot lady, 635; reflections on the low estimate of life among the Hindoos, 636; inconvenience attending Hindoo servants, 638; religious tolerance between the Hindoos and Mahomedans, ib.; its probable cause, 639; torture inflicted on an Hindoo collector to discover his treasures, 640; sheep-skin death, ib.; snakes appointed guardians of Hindoo treasures, 641-2; monkeys rendered subservient to acts of revenge, 642; enviable mode of procuring a view of a natural exhibition of wild beasts, 643; lion hunt in the forest of Durlee, 644; remarkable petition of a Parsee merchant, 646; ordeals, ib.; testimony of the author highly favourable to the advocates for diffusing Christianity in India, 617; general execution of the work, 618

Fortified places, Carnot's defence of, 92

France, observations on the late treaty of peace with, 197

French Dictionary, by W. Smith, 494

French language, Worsley's rules for pronouncing and reading it, 496

Fruits of the Spirit, a view of the graces that adorn the Christian character, 193; necessarily connected with His influences, 194; extract on Antinomian bigotry, ib. et seq.; fanatic delusion, 195

Gibbon and Addison, their views at the close of life contrasted, 382

Glory acquired by a military life, its doubtful nature, 380

Glory of the latter days, a discourse by Wm. Roby, 90

Glover, author of Leonidas, the supposed author of Junius's letters, 280; his political integrity, 285

Golden core, passing through one, a mode of procuring the remission of sins, by the ra-

INDEX.

- John of Travancore at the instigation of the Brahmans*, 485
- Good man's prospect after death*, 501-2
- Grant's, (Mrs.) Eighteen Hundred and Thirteen, a poem, 102
- Greek bull, 185
- Greek church in Russia, less superstitious than is generally supposed, 431; its instrumentality in widely propagating the Christian truth, anticipated from the consideration of the purity of its doctrines, 437; from its extensively circulating the Scriptures, 438; and from the conduct of the Russian Clergy, 439
- Hall's Address to the Rev. Eustace Carey, 85, et seq.; duties of a missionary, distinct from those of an ordinary pastor, 86, et seq.; views of an enlightened statesman and a Christian minister in regard to missions different, 89
- Hamilton's, (Elizabeth), Essays on the Understanding, the Imagination, and the Heart, 17, et seq.; primary objects of education, 18; utility of the study of mind to those on whom it is devolved, ib.; necessity of exciting the attention, 19; senses rendered acute by exercise, 20; causes of the negligent habits of servants, 21-2, and extract; hints towards counteracting them, ib. et seq.; inquiry into the nature of duty, and its qualifications, 24-5; attention indispensable to clearness of perception, 26, and extract; its effects on the imagination, 27; and in producing the emotions of taste, 28; the propensity to magnify the idea of self, 29, et seq.; extensive prevalence of this principle, 31, et seq.; Miss H.'s application of it in respect to those who abstain from public amusement, 33, et seq.; objections to her application, 34, et seq.; this principle considered in relation to pride, &c. 37; to party spirit, bigotry, and intolerance, 39; benevolent affections, an antidote against this propensity, 41, et seq.; active and passive benevolence, 44; human nature exhibits no example of perfect benevolence, 45; character of Christ, as revealed in scripture, calculated for human imitation, 46; two chief causes of failure, ib. et seq.; general remarks on the work, 48-9
- Heathenish rites, their tendency to sensualize the mind*, 554
- Henry's additional experiments on the muriatic and oxymuriatic acids, 599
- Herschel's, Dr. observations upon two comets which appeared in the winter of 1811—1812, 383
- Holland and Venice, almost entirely dependent on other states for corn, 7; have suffered but little inconvenience from hostile nations on that account, 8
- Holy Spirit, Faber's treatise on the ordinary operations of the, 50, et seq.
- Home on some peculiarities in the structure of the organ of hearing in the Balaena mysticetus of Linnæus, 246
- on the different structures of the solvent glands in the digestive organs of birds, &c. 604
- Home's observations, intended to show that the progressive motion of snakes is partly performed by means of the ribs, 251
- Horne's, Melville, sermon of thanksgiving on the late peace, 422; extract, ib.
- Horsley's, (Bishop) speeches in parliament, 64, et seq.; remarks on the sudden advancement to the most elevated dignity offered to plebeians in the church, 64; its effects on the conduct of some prelates, 65; on Bishop H. ib.; intellectual character of his speeches, 66-7; their subjects, ib.; his dignified reproof of levity in a noble Lord, 68
- Hunter's theory of life, Abernethy's inquiry into the probability and rationality of, 75, et seq.; medical prosperity not always to be ascribed to merit, 76; danger of errors of thought, 77; mind probably acts upon matter by an intervening substance, 78; dissecting room unfavourable to the faith as well as health of pupils, ib.; its causes, ib.
- Idolatry, ancient, its spirit recognizable in certain modern institutions and forms, 543
- Immortality of the soul, cannot be disproved by the sceptical, nor proved by the pious heathen, 84; brought to light by the Gospel, ib.
- Individuality, a poem, by Martha A. Sellon, 514
- Infallibility of the Pope denied, by Mr. Eustace, to be a doctrine of the Catholic creed*, 560
- Infidelity, its results compared with the effects of Christianity*, 62-3
- Inquiry concerning the author of the letters of Junius, see Junius
- Irresistibility of the influence of the Holy Spirit, 56, 58
- Italy, Eustace's tour through, 465;

INDEX.

qualifications requisite to a traveller through this country, 466

Itinerancy among the clergy, the spirit of, severely animadverted on by Dr. Law, bishop of Chester, 587

Ivory, on the grounds of Laplace's method for computing the attractions of spheroids of every description, 383

— on the attraction of an extensive class of spheroids, 383

James's, (Major) new and enlarged military dictionary, 98, et seq.; specimens of accurate translation and definition, ib. et seq.

Japan, see Langsdorff's voyages and travels, 133, et seq.

Jaqueline, a tale, 395-8; its character and merit, 399; extract, ib. et seq.

Juggernaut, his car seized, broken, and sold, by order of a collector under the Madras presidency, 530-1

Junius, inquiry concerning the author of the letters of, with reference to the Memoirs of a celebrated literary character, 278, et seq.; mystery, its effects on the mind, 279; Mr. Glover, the supposed author of the letters, 280; presumptive proofs, ib.; a difficulty stated and examined, 282; a second difficulty in regard to the handwriting; memoir, valuable, as an historical record, 284; political integrity of Glover, 285; extracts, ib.

Kenda], Robert, see Davies's 'brand plucked out of the fire'

Kett's Flowers of wit, 184, et seq.; extracts, 185

Kidd's sermons for the use of villages and families, 389, et seq.; favourable character of the discourses, 390; extracts, ib. et seq.

Knight on the attraction of such solids as are terminated by planes, and on solids of greatest attraction, 385

— on the penetration of a hemisphere by an indefinite number of equal and similar cylinders, 386

— on the motions of the tendrils of plants, 600

Lacey's discourses for domestic use, 498, et seq.; difficulty of selecting sermons for publication, ib.; character of the sermons, 500; calmness of mind arising from confidence in God, 500-1; the good man's prospect after death, 501-2

Lancasterian schools, unjustifiable charge against them in regard to religion, by the Bishop of Chester, 587

Langsdorff's voyages and travels in various parts of the world, 133, et seq.; probability that the Sandwich Islands have been reduced under the sole authority of Tamahama, ib.; great intellectual capabilities of islanders, ib. 134; Mowna Roa, its height, &c. ib.; inaccuracy of our charts of the Japan Islands, 136; arrival at Mangasaki, ib.; their reception, 137; the Opperbanjos, ib.; Russians required to surrender their cannon, powder, &c. 138; rigorously restricted to their vessel, 139, et seq.; desperate subordination of the people, 142; presents for the Emperor, 143; ambassador's residence described, 144; procession to the house of the governor, 148-9; the presents refused, with the alleged cause, 150; instance of matchless subordination, 154; Captain sails northward to St. Peter and St. Paul, 155; Sachalin, a peninsula, 156; jealousy of the Chinese court more unreasonable than that of Japan, 157

Laplace's theory of probabilities, 562, et seq.; continued, ib. et seq.; principles of his theory, 565; mode of applying them, ib.; on the probability of error in the mean results of numerous observations, 567, et seq.; application of the theory to the investigation of various phenomena, 568

Lara, a tale, 393, et seq.; extract, 395; liable in some instances to the charge of impiety, 398

Law's, (Dr.) charge to the clergy of the diocese of Chester, 578, et seq.; visitation charges ordinarily of a repulsive nature, 579; philanthropy of the dissenters and methodists a great national benefit, 580; Dr. L.'s remarks on the constitution and object of the Bible Society, 581; luminous illustration of his argument, 582; examined and exposed, ib. et seq.; real cause of the opposition to the Bible Society, 584; alleged cause of the clergy for withholding their co-operation, 585; examined and confuted, ib.; unjustifiable charge against the Lancasterian Schools, 587; his lordship's severe animadversions on the spirit of itinerancy in regard to the clergy, ib.; his generous feelings in regard to the salaries of stipendiary curates, 589

Lauderdale's, Earl of, letter on the corn laws, 1, et seq.; leading features of the work described, 11, 16.

Life, different views arising from the consi-

I N D E X.

- deration of it in its earlier and later stages, 376
- Life, Hunter's theory of, see Hunter
- , its low estimate among the Hindoos, 636
- of the soul, extracted from Kidd's sermon on the way of life, 390
- Lindsey, the late Rev. Theoph., see Belsham's memoirs, 113
- Lion hunt in the forest of Durlée, near Cambay, 644
- Loff's Laura, or anthology of sonnets, 502, et seq.; Gray's sonnet to the memory of West, with critical remarks, 502-3; sonnet from the Italian of G. Colta, 504; from Shakspeare, 505; construction of the sonnet, ib.; author's fanciful analogy of the sonnet and the tones of a musical octave, &c., 507; sonnet in France, Germany, &c., 509; extracts, 510, et seq.
- Lord's Prayer, Mann's short discourses on, 630
- Mahratta army described, 457-8
- Mann's short discourses on the Lord's Prayer, 630, extract, ib.
- Malthus's observations on the effects of the corn laws, 1; his reasoning inconclusive, 16
- Maude's Kingdom of God, a sermon, 422
- Meadley's memoirs of Algernon Sydney, 256, et seq.; his situation and circumstances unfavourable to the development of his character, 257; probable cause of the high estimation in which his name is held, 258; sketch of his life, ib. et seq.; noble conduct of one of Cromwell's soldiers, 259; Sydney approves of the sentence against Charles I. ib.; preserves the life of the prince of Wales, (Charles II.) ib.; retires to the continent, ib.; his character of the French court, ib. et seq.; singular instance of his haughty independence, 262; picture of France under Louis XIV. 263; revisits England, 264; M. Barillon, 265; arrest and condemnation of Sydney, 266; his intrepid reply to the executioner, 267
- Mease's picture of Philadelphia, 302, et seq.; defective nature of our information respecting the character, habits, &c. of the Anglo-Americans, 302; public opinion in Britain greatly advanced before policy and law, 303; the national character not to be estimated by the conduct of the governors, 304; remarks on national prejudice, ib.; Philadelphia built by Penn after the model of Babylon, 306; substratum of the city, ib.; progressive population of the city and liberties, 308; contrast between American and London porter, 309; American press, &c. 310; state of periodical literature, ib.; circuit court of Philadelphia, ib.; Penn on capital punishment, 312; management of criminals, 313; religious societies, 314; charitable institutions, ib.; peculiarities attending the formation of the national character of the Anglo-Americans, 315
- Memoirs of the Queen of Etruria, written by herself, 590, et seq.; prince of Parma appointed to the throne of Tuscany, 590; state of the palace at Florence, 592; queen appointed regent on the demise of the king, ib.; dethroned by order of Buonaparte, ib.; imprisoned on account of an attempt to escape to England, 593; her harsh treatment from Gen. Miollis, her jailor, 593; liberated, ib.; estimate of her intellectual character, 595; seizure of the Pope, 596-7; enthusiastic attachment of the French to the Pope, in his progress towards Paris, 598; alarm of Buonaparte, and return of the Pope, ib.
- Memoirs of a celebrated literary and political character, see Junius
- Merivale's Orlando in Roncesvalles, a poem, 227, et seq.; works of the poet most interesting, as forming faithful and lively records of national character and manners, ib.; favourable estimate of the author's taste and judgment, 229; analysis of the poem, and extracts, 229, et seq.
- Miaco, the residence of the Daïri, the ecclesiastical sovereign of Japan, 146
- Military Dictionary, by Major James, 98
- Mind, necessity of a holy influence on the, 54
- Missionary, a poem, 69, et seq.; dramatic poetry, its claims to attention; 69; not necessarily connected with the histrionic art, ib. (note); original purpose of the ancient drama, 70, (note); subject of the poem, and extracts, 71, et seq.
- Modern Parnassus, a poem, 458, et seq.; enlightened criticism, distinguished from satire, ib. et seq.; subjects of the poem, ib.; Bloomfield's poetic claims considered, 461-2; source of the writer's satirical criticism, 463; hints to the author, &c. concerning the prerequisites to readers of poetry, 464

INDEX.

Monkeys, instance of their distress and affection for a dead companion, 410
Moonshine, 183

Moral influence of Buonaparte's despotism peculiarly dreadful, 627

Mowna Roa, its height and remarkable form, 134

National character of a people not to be estimated by the conduct of their governors, 304

Nature, sketch from, 300-1; extracts, ib.

New England contains but one professedly Unitarian chapel, 122

Newport Pagnel, origin of the institution there for the education of candidates for the Christian ministry, 413

Old age, delusive error arising from improper views of it, 331

Oran reduced by Cardinal Ximenes, 331

Orlando in Roncesvalles, a poem, by Merivale, 227, et seq.

Orton, Job, his inclination to rank Mr.
Lindsey with the silenced and ejected ministers, repugnant to reason and scripture, &c. 130

Padua, decline of its schools, 471

Parnassian wild shrubs, by W. Taylor, 182

Parrots, their numbers, and destructive nature in India, 447

Paulinus's Epistle to Celantia, 382

Peace of mind arising from confidence in the care of God, 500-1

Persecution, Chandler's history of, by Mr. Atmore, 237, et seq.

Petrarcha's villa described, 476-7

Phædo, a dialogue on the immortality of the soul, translated from the Greek of Plato, 79, et seq.; frivolous arguments advanced by Socrates, 80;
Wollaston's argument examined, 80, et seq.; Butler's argument stated, 82;
distinctness of the soul and body, 83-4

Philadelphia, Mease's picture of, 302, et seq.; built by Penn after the model of Babylon, 306. See Mease

Philanthropy of the dissenters and methodists a great national benefit, 580

Philosophical transactions of the royal society of London, for 1812, part I.
244, et seq.; peculiarities in the structure of the organ of hearing in the Balæna Mysticetus, 246; chemical researches on the blood, and some other animal fluids, 247; gaseous compound of carbonic oxide and chlorine, 249; eruption of a volcano in the sea, 250; primitive crystals of carbonate of lime, bitter spar, and iron spar, 251; progressive motion of snakes performed by means of the ribs, ib.; combinations of different metals and chlorine, ib.; on the action of poisons on the animal system, 253. Part II. Additional experiments on the muriatic and oxymuriatic acids, 599; on the motions of the tendrils of plants, 600; account of some experiments on different combinations of fluoric acid, 601-2; experiments on the influence of the brain on the generation of animal heat, 603; on the structures, &c. of the solvent glands, in the digestive organs of birds, &c.

604; on the combinations of phosphorus and sulphur, ib. Mathematical papers. On the grounds of Laplace's method for computing the attractions of spheroids of every description, 383;
on the attraction of an extensive class of spheroids, ib.; Dr. Herschel's observations on two comets which appeared in 1811, 1812, 385; on the attraction of such solids as are terminated by planes, and on solids of greatest attraction, ib.; on the penetration of a hemisphere by an indefinite number of equal and similar cylinders, 386; observations on the measurement of three degrees of the meridian, ib.; on a periscopic camera obscura and microscope, 388

Pinkerton on the present state of the Greek Church in Russia. See Platon
Platon's present state of the Greek Church in Russia, translated by Pinkerton, 429, et seq.; Russian empire, our notions of its religion, &c. incorrect, ib.; grounds for anticipating its rapid improvement, 430-1; superstition of the Greek Church not so great as generally supposed, ib.; Mr. Pinkerton's qualifications for, and object in writing, 432; on the reverencing of pictures, with remarks, ib.; religious sentiments of the metropolitan, 435; sketch of the work, ib.; Platon on the present state of man, and the sacrifice of Christ, 436; probability that the Russian Church will speedily become more scriptural in its forms of devotion, 437, et seq.

Plato's dialogue on the immortality of the soul, see Phædo.

Poet, his works peculiarly interesting as forming faithful and lively records of national character and manners, 227 b

INDEX.

- Poet and Painter seldom united in one poem, 187
- Poisons, observations on their action on the animal system, 253
- Pope, his seizure by order of Buonaparte, 596; enthusiastic behaviour of the French during his journey to Paris, 598; alarm of Buonaparte, and order for the Pope's return, ib.
- Popery, remarks on, in the Velvet Cushion, 340
- Portfolio, 286
- Portugal, its subjects busied in enslaving the Africans, 198
- Prayer, Dissenters accused of undervaluing its importance, 356-7; prayer, the employment of angels, 357
- Predestined Thief, or a dialogue between a Calvinistic teacher and a condemned thief; translated from the Latin of Archbishop Sancroft, with an Application to the recent case of Robert Kendal, by the Editor, 213, et seq.; offensive tendency of the work, ib.; author's design in publishing it, 214; accordance of parts of the dialogue with some of the Articles of the Church, 215; tendency of Calvinistic principles examined, 216, et seq.; Appendix, and Mr. Davies's Brief Account, 219; principles of Calvinism inapplicable to Kendal's case, ib.; glaring mistatement of the editor, ib.; unwarrantable declarations of Mr. Davies respecting the conversion, &c. of Kendal, 220-1; cautions to ministers who visit condemned criminals, 221; objectionable nature of the accounts of 'converted malefactors,' 222, et seq.; late conversions, 224; 'penitent thief,' peculiarities of his case, 225.
- Priestley, Dr. his admissions that we know nothing of the nature of God, 614
- Probabilities, Laplace's theory of, 562, et seq.
- Puerperal fever, Armstrong's facts and observations relative to it, 400, et seq.
- Puritans unjustly accused by the Velvet Cushion of the rebellion against Charles I., and of his murder, 344; source of the troubles of his reign, as given by Lord Clarendon, 344; by Bishop Burnet, ib.; and Dr. Moulin, 346
- Quarrels of authors, 288, et seq.; contents, 289; mixed nature of the claims of this work to public attention, 290; author's industry, 291; a hint, ib.; character of the work, ib.; Dr. South's sarcastic remark on the members of the Royal Society, 292; Charles the Second's waggish test of their philosophical qualifications, 292; Bishop Sprat's unchristianizing political spirit, 293; melancholy complexion of the literary history of Warburton, and extract, ib.
- Queen of Etruria, memoirs of, written by herself, 590, et seq.; Gen. Miollis's harsh treatment of her during her captivity, 593
- Rebellion against Charles I. unjustly charged upon the Puritans by the Velvet Cushion, 344; its sources, as given by Lord Clarendon, Bishop Burnet, and Dr. Moulin, 344, et seq.; unconstitutional application of the term rebellion, 347
- Reflections of a French constitutional royalist, 624
- Reformation preachers, their excellencies, 341
- Religious seminaries, necessity for elevating their intellectual and literary, as well as moral character, 414
- Repentance explained and enforced, by J. Thornton, 294-5
- Report of the committee of the Church missionary society, 526
- Residence in a Pagan country usually injurious to the moral and religious character, 87
- Reverencing of pictures in the Greek Church, Platon's remarks on, 434
- Reynolds, Shee's commemoration of, see Shee
- Rhetians, their amiable character, 471
- Robinson's Plea for the Divinity of Christ, Archdeacon Blackburne's opinion of it, 124-5
- Rodriguez's observations on the measurement of three degrees of the meridian, conducted in England by Lt. Col. Mudge, 386
- Rome and Jerusalem, their tendency to excite classical recollections and devotional sentiments, 541, et seq.
- Rome, most interesting as the subject of prophecy, 545; view of ancient and modern, from the tower of the capitol, 546-7
- Rose's, Rt. Hon. G. speech on the corn laws, 1
- Rouse's doctrine of chances, or theory of gaming, 562, et seq.; design and contents of the work, 563
- Sachalin united to Tartary by sand hills, probably formed by the Amour, 156-7
- Saint Peter's, exhibition in it on the evening of Good Friday, 555

INDEX.

- Sandwich Islands probably form one sovereignty, 133; intellectual powers of the natives, ib. et seq.
- Scott's light shining out of darkness, a sermon on the late peace, 421; extract, 422
- Scripture prints, the old masters, having belonged to the Church of Rome, were ill acquainted with their subjects, 192; absurd representations, ib.
- Sellon's Individuality, a poem, 513; extract, 514
- Sermons for domestic reading, by the Rev. J. Evans, 295, et seq.; their character, 296; extracts illustrative of their spirit and manner, 298, et seq.
- for the use of villages and families, by Thornhill Kidd, 389, et seq.
- on the occasion of the late peace, 419, et seq.
- Shark's fins, a valuable article of trade to China, 445
- Shee's commemoration of Reynolds, 186; features of resemblance between the painter and the poet, ib.; not mere copyists of, ib.; should seize the imagination of the spectator or reader, 187; objections to West's large historical pieces, ib.; difference between their modes of attaining their objects, 186; the two characters seldom united, 187
- Simpson's plea for the Deity of Jesus, and the doctrine of the Trinity, 606, et seq.; his entrance into life, 606; persuaded by Mr. Lindsey to study the Bible, and purchases one in consequence, ib.; becomes curate of Ramsgate, in Essex, 607; Bishop of Lincoln's testimony to his good conduct, ib.; Bishop of Chester silences him on the plea of methodism, 607; restored to his former situation at Macclesfield, 608; second attempt to get him silenced, and another church built for him, 609; his intention to quit the church prevented by his death, ib.; his liberal opinions concerning the right of private judgement in religious matters, 610; analysis of the work, 611; its character, ib.; Unitarians blind to the doctrines of the ancient Church, 612; doctrines of the New Testament not calculated to leave a Unitarian impression on the mind, 643; admissions of Dr. Priestley that we know nothing of the nature of God, 614; Socinians cannot know what can or cannot consist with the unity of God, 615
- Sketch from nature, a moral poem, 300-1; extracts, ib.
- Smith's French dictionary, 494
- Snakes appointed guardians to concealed treasures among the Hindoos, 641-2
- , Home's observations on the progressive motions of, 251
- Socinianism on the decline in England, 119, et seq.; ill founded representations of its rapid conversions apologized for by Mr. Belsham, 122
- Socinians cannot know what can or cannot consist with the Unity of God, 615
- Socinus, the character of his system, 124
- Solfatara, description of the plain, 558
- Sonnets, anthology of, or Lofft's Laura, 502, et seq.
- Southey's congratulatory odes, 179, et seq.; extracts, ib.
- South's, Dr. sarcastic remark on the members of the Royal Society, 292
- Southwark Auxiliary Bible Society, second annual report of it, 178
- Sprat, Bishop, his violent political prejudices induce him to unchristianize Milton, 293
- Steady Resolution exemplified in the conduct of the three Hebrew truths; from Kidd's sermons, 392
- Stipendiary curates, Dr. Law's generous feeling in respect to their salaries, 589
- Strutt's Rape of Proserpine, translated from Claudian, 363, et seq.; inquiry concerning the declension of taste among the Romans, ib. et seq.; character of Claudian as a poet, 366; his manner not happily caught by his translator, instances, ib. et seq.; extract, 367; on the choice of language, as connected with poetical composition, 369; extracts illustrative of the work, and of the translator's poetical qualifications, 373
- Sunderbunds described, 448; wretched condition of the Molungies or salt-boilers in those districts, 448
- Sunderland, Dr. Armstrong's successful treatment of the puerperal fever there, and in its neighbourhood, 400, et seq.
- Sutcliffe, Mr. extract from the obituary of, 361
- Sydney, Algernon, Meadley's memoirs of, 256, et seq.; instance of his haughty independence, 262; his intrepid reply to the executioner, 267
- Teak tree, its durability, 442
- Termites, or white ants, their destructive nature, 445

INDEX.

- Test/laws, their repeal would not endanger the church, 162; their real evils, 164-5
- Thornton's fruits of the Spirit, 193
- Thornton's Repentance explained and enforced, 294; analysis and character of the work, 295
- Tillard's narrative of the eruption of a volcano in the sea, off the island of St. Michael, 250
- Time, expedients to impress on the mind considerations of its transitoriness*, 379
- Tixall poetry, by Arthur Clifford, Esq. 267, et seq.; character of the composition, ib.; its authenticity, 268; extracts, 269, et seq.
- Trajan, his palace, or ship in the lake of Nemi, 556
- Treaty of peace with France, observations on it, 197, et seq.; exiled Portugal busied in enslaving the Africans, leaving England to fight its European battles, 198; caution against implicitly confiding in any set of men, 200; the enforcement of national morality, ib.; power possessed by the English to prevent the renovation of the slave trade by the French, 204; allied sovereigns neglect to require its abolition by the French, 205
- Vatican, remarks on some paintings in it, 550; Raffaello's painting of the ETERNAL FATHER, 551
- Vaughan's Lesson of our times; a thanksgiving sermon for the late peace, 420; extract, 421
- Velvet Cushion, 335, et seq.; outline of the work, ib. et seq.; objections to its construction, 337; indefinite sense lately attached to the term 'Dissenter,' 338; author's epigram on the religion of cathedrals, houses, and barns, 338; examined, 339; and contrasted, 340; Vicar's remarks upon Popery, 340; excellencies of the Reformation preachers, 341; author's apology for Charles I. 342; Burnet's character of Charles, ib.; remarks on the application of the terms martyr and saint to Charles, 343; puritans unjustly accused of the death of the King, &c. 344; extracts from Lord Clarendon, Burnet, and Towgood, on the cause of the troubles of that period, 345-6; unconstitutional application of the term rebellion, 347; extract from Burke's address to the King, 348; charge against Dissenters for contempt of forms, 349; for their conduct to their ministers, ib. et seq.; invidious attack on the meeting house, 352; charge that declining societies among Dissenters never recover themselves, examined, 354, et seq.; Dissenters undervalue the importance of prayer, 357; considered as auxiliaries to the church, 359; Vicar's remarks on Calvinism and Arminianism, 360-1; extract from the obituary of Mr. Sutcliffe, ib.; general character of the work, 362; hints to controversialists, ib.
- Venice, causes of its decline, 475 ——— dependent on foreign states for its supply of corn, 8
- Verona, its amphitheatre, and an account of two modern exhibitions in it, 472
- Virgil, his tomb, 557
- Virgil's pastorals and georgics, remarks on the scenery of, 478 9
- Volcano in the sea, off the island of St. Michael, Tillard's narrative of, 250
- Warburton, melancholy complexion of his literary history, 293; extract, ib.
- Water, the beauty and force of the scripture allusive to its beneficent effects, peculiarly felt in the East, 443
- Wesley's, John, excellent letter to a bishop; expostulating with him on account of the persecuting of some of his preachers, 244
- West's historical pieces, objections to them, 187
- Whip-snake described, 411
- Wollaston on the primitive crystals of carbonate of lime, bitter spar, and iron spar, 251
 ——— on a periscopic camera obscura and microscope, 388
- Worsley's rules for pronouncing and reading the French language, 495; origin of the work, 496
- Ximenes, Cardinal, Barrett's life of, 325, et seq.; founds the university of Alcala, 330; compiles the Complutensian Polyglott Bible, ib.
- Youle's arithmetical preceptor, 496, et seq.

ERRATA in the December Number.

Page 573, line 4, for similar, real s mplier.—Page 639, line 1, for instigation, read mitigation.—Page 639, line 9, from bottom, for denomination, read domination.

om
8;
npt
heir on hat
ers
ed,
the
er-59;
mi-obieral s to

for at of es on

f St.
60

n of b.
crip-ects,

to a n on ne of s to ls of and

ob-

and 495;

e of,
ty of ensian

96, et

, read
iou.